

Congratulations for the wedding anniversary

Dear, my lovely wife/ husband:

Today is been five ("X "years) we are together. Sharing illusions, happiness, work, and so, troubles. But I think that up to now we have known how to live with all the alternatives that a life together entails.

I thank you for your goodwill and predisposition to face our daily adventure with joy and serenity with love and detachment, with warmth and good manners. I just wish to know how to respond to you in the same way and give fun to your joy, love to your great love and warmth to your warmth.

I do not want to say more words that will not serve to give us more comfortable experiences, if not, in the other hand, perhaps, to scare us when we verify the excellence of our union and believe that it cannot be overcome. But, no, think and you will come to realize that if we persist, day by day, we will be able to keep the great solidity of our life together, which must be our goal.

Keep thinking of me You live in me constantly.
